Oregon Blue Book

Providing a compelling look at veterans' policy, this book describes why the Republican party is considered the party for veterans despite the fact that Congressional Democrats are responsible for a greater number of policy initiatives. • Includes content from nearly 20,000 e-newsletters sent from Congress members to constituents to demonstrate the differences in how Congress discusses and legislates veterans' issues • Provides a detailed description of the key legislative players, proposals, and communication strategies surrounding veterans' policies • Offers advice on providing for the future of veterans' policies and describes the risks and benefits associated with moving veterans' care into private industry • Offers the first in-depth case study on the implementation of the post-9/11

GI bill • Suggests the scandal surrounding the 2010 Phoenix VA hospital is an example of partisan differences in communication tactics

The United States Government Printing Office (GPO) was created in June 1860, and is an agency of the U.S. federal government based in Washington D.C. The office prints documents produced by and for the federal government, including Congress, the Supreme Court, the Executive Office of the President and other executive departments, and independent agencies. A hearing is a meeting of the Senate, House, joint or certain Government committee that is open to the public so that they can listen in on the opinions of the legislation. Hearings can also be held to explore certain topics or a current issue. It typically takes between two months up to two years to be published. This is one of those hearings.
