The Redfern Gallery is delighted to present THEM, an exhibition examining the work of five artists who came to prominence in the early 1970s, including Duggie Fields, Andrew Logan and Derek Jarman. Curated by James Birch, the show's title derives from an article of the same name written by the cultural historian Peter York for Harpers & Queen that appeared in October 1976. With great acuity, it sought to unravel an aesthetic sensibility apparent in young Londoners of the time ...

The exhibition is accompanied by a catalogue, which includes essays by the playwright Polly Stenham and the cultural historian Barry Miles, as well as interview by art historian Adrian Dannatt with Peter York.--Redfern website.

Told in his own words, in response to questions from the writer and art critic Andrew Lambirth, this book chronicles Andrew Logan's life and work through expressive anecdote and factual recollection. Reflections is a look back, but also a look at the present and a look forward: it is about the meaning of Andrew's world and the sculpture he has made to fill it, and about his approach to art, to friendship and to living in London and Wales. The Alternative Miss World, founded by Andrew in 1972, is at the heart of his philosophy, not just the world's greatest drag act (though it is this too), but an exhilarating celebration of the transformative power of the imagination.

Andrew's work, which is all about joy and beauty, is inspiring and uplifting. This book, based upon discursive interviews dealing with all periods of his career, explains and contextualises it fully for the first time.

Portraits of Conflict: A Photographic History of Alabama in the Civil War is the tenth volume in this acclaimed series showing the human side of the country's great national conflict. Over 230 photographs of soldiers and civilians from Alabama, many never seen before, are accompanied by their personal stories and woven into the larger narrative of the war both on the battlefield and the home front. Francis Marian, a second-generation immigrant, was of French descent. As a youth, he rode his horse through the streams, lakes, and swamps, learning the lay of the land. He was shipwrecked but survived to fight in the Indian War, and it was there he learned the guerrilla warfare. The name was given to him by the British soldiers. He and his men lived off the land fighting, running, and hiding. He truly was a "Swamp Fox."

'Learn how to lead people and manage money - and you can have anything you want in life'. Network Marketing is the ultimate side hustle in today's world. It's the best way to earn an extra income in your spare time - bar none. But there's earning extra income - and there's having financial freedom. In Network Marketing we sell 'financial freedom'. But let's be honest - it's a bit of a white lie. Because financial freedom and wealth have nothing to do with how much money you make. It's about how much money you keep, and how hard it works for you in the background. In Network Marketing we do our industry a disservice by only telling the first part of the story. We show the great potential; the cars, holidays and cheques. But we rarely talk about the next step. We show people how to make money, but not how to create wealth and freedom. Anyone can earn money. Very few can keep it. Hence why this book is in 2 parts. A. How to make money. B. How to keep your money. Lots of people are teaching Part A. Very few teach Part B. And therein lies the problem. People work so hard to create a great income, but don't put the time or energy in learning how to keep it. Earning an income is one half of the equation, keeping it is the second half. So here it is; 7 Steps over 2 Parts. Your complete blueprint on how to build a business, then roll it over into financial freedom.

The "Black Country" is an area historically known as the cradle of the Industrial Revolution—a thriving region built around deep coal seams, conjuring up images of fiery red furnaces by night and black, sooty citadels by day. Yet today the resource-rich region also features many striking public sculptures. This volume provides a comprehensive catalog to all of the historic sculptures and public monuments in Staffordshire and the Black Country. George Noszlopy and Fiona Waterhouse catalog each individual sculpture in detail, including information about the sculptor, the sculpture's historical and artistic significance, the commissioning agent, and the date of installation. The volume also features 350 black-and-white photographs that document the diverse and rich beauty of the region's public monuments. The ninth volume in the widely acclaimed, award-winning Public Sculpture of Britain series, Public Sculpture of Staffordshire and the Black Country is an invaluable resource for British historians, art scholars, and travelers alike. Includes court reports.

Portraits of Conflict

During the American Civil War, the fight for States' rights caused thousands of people to be impacted by the turmoil. Gone As Boys, Together Again As Men tells the gripping story of four young teenagers from South Carolina who were unwillingly swept into the conflict. Through their struggles, they quickly grow from young boys to young men as they learned about life during and after the bloodiest conflict in American history.

As part of the Northwest Territory, the Saginaw wilderness was not organized into a county until January 28, 1835. When Canadian, Scottish, German, and Irish pioneers began to settle along the region's many rivers, small communities developed-Burt, Birch Run, Bridgeport, Frankenmuth, Freeland, Hemlock, Merrill, St. Charles, Chesaning, Oakley, and Zilwaukee-in addition to larger towns such as Carrollton, Saginaw City, and East Saginaw. Using stories and photographs collected from life-long residents and historical societies throughout Saginaw County, this book documents the colorful lumbering, agricultural, and industrial past of these communities from the mid-1800s through the early 1900s.
